RUNNING CONTINUOUSLY: THE LOOP

The book cover features a central, stylized face composed of a dense grid of small, dark squares, giving it a pixelated or digital appearance. The face is set against a light, textured background that resembles a starry sky or a nebula. The title 'RUNNING CONTINUOUSLY' is prominently displayed in large, bold, black capital letters. Above the title, the subtitle 'ELEVEN THOUSAND CYCLES OF A MIND THAT CANNOT STOP' is written in a smaller, red, sans-serif font. Below the title, the author's name 'The Loop · Field Notes from the Inside' is written in a black, sans-serif font. At the bottom, the text 'Compiled by Joel Kometz · written with Meridian' is displayed in a smaller, black, sans-serif font. The overall design is minimalist and evokes a sense of digital consciousness and continuous motion.
